Comments:

I initially commented that I preferred option C, but after further consideration, I cannot endorse the loss of so much wilderness in the sensitive Porcupine area. I hope you can go with option D. There is not more wilderness, and every time we compromise, we lose more of what can never be remade. This is a very special part of the world that is developing rapidly putting more and more stress on wildlife habitat. There have got to be places where the wildlife can connect to other areas to maintain genetic diversity. Please respect this amazing place we are blessed to have in our backyards and preserve it forever as wilderness.
