Please stop closing access to our forests. I can understand closing areas during certain times of the year for migration, birthing, or etc. But putting a complete shutdown on areas for motorized access year round seems over the top. We have thousands of acres that can be used without motorized vehicles that animals access. Part of the issues is predators that push those animals out of the areas designate already. Drive from Livingston to Gardiner and you'll see animals everywhere because its safe and easier to live there. Jackson Hole / Teton Valley is having the same issues right now. Closing more areas isn't the answer. We need to look at where the animals want to be and why they aren't in other areas before we start closing everything down to the public. Or at least open an area each time you close an area down.

Please if anything open more access to the public, and not make more wilderness areas.
