Dear USFS,

As a father & outdoorsman I would like to share my great experiences in the Crazy Mountains carrying my 4 yr. old son when he peetered out from hiking alongside me with our gear. It was such a bonding experience, we are going to revisit the experience this summer with friends from Vermont going in the Clyde Park Trail head camping at Cottonwood Lake glacial Cirque. The nature of this wilderness cannot be overstated; it's like being in Switzerland or some incredible Alaskan range. This range needs to be protected please. Thank you. I have studied it since then it seems the Crow tribe has the best connection to it and should be listened to if possible when arranging for information.

Next year we hope to explore the Pryor Mountains which sounds pretty amazing. Other parts of this forest system we use are in Bridger Bowl season pass holders. Skiing other places in the spring and fall Fairy Lake, skiing The Great One Couloir, Beartooth Pass next weekend at Beartooth Basin all part of this incredible conserved for a wildlife habitat and diverse recreational access. We sometimes mtn. bike but prefer less mechanics! Thank you for considering this input.
